IMPRESSIONS

OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA
SCHOOL OF DENTISTRY

VOLUME ONE 1984

DEDICATION

The premier issue of Impressions is dedicated to a rather large group of talented individuals who have forged a path before us and set a standard of excellence for all to follow.

While perfection is an ideal to be attained, it is seldom achieved quickly but, rather, must be laboriously sought. Criticism and complaints, while necessary to make problems known, are no solution in themselves. Though dental school is incredibly stressful and strenuous, it is continuously evolving. Therefore, we salute those alumni who have not only scaled, assisted, taught, labored, and 99'd themselves to freedom but have, in the process, brought about improvement and have left something behind for us which was better than they found it.

Our dental school has come a long way in 32 years. While saluting those who have brought the school to its present condition, we recognize its shortcomings. We challenge students, faculty and staff to not give in to complacency and tradition, but to constantly seek change for the betterment of the institution, for yourselves and everyone who walks in behind you – be they students or patients.

Though step 99 indicates completion, we see the school at an earlier stage – an impressionable stage. That's step 49 isn't it? Impressions.

HISTORY

Prior to June 1954, The State of North Carolina did not have a dental school to educate dentists to serve the citizens of this Commonwealth. North Carolina had to rely on its residents being accepted as students in the dental schools of other states. Fortunately, there were a number of graduates from various schools who elected to become residents of our state and to practice here. But, there were relatively few dentists to serve our people when compared with other states in the Union.

Because of this situation the dentists of North Carolina, with the continued leadership of Dr. Henry O. Lineberger, Sr., initiated a comprehensive survey to determine the dental needs of the state. Considering the facts revealed by the survey, the General Assembly of 1949 authorized the activation of the School of Dentistry at the University of North Carolina.

Dr. John C. Brauer, who was the Dean of the School of Dentistry, University of Southern California at Los Angeles, at the time of his election, was appointed Dean of the new School at U.N.C. When Dr. Brauer arrived in Chapel Hill in January of 1950, he established a time table of nine months (January-September, 1950) in which to interview and select the first members of the clinical faculty; to design a four-year curriculum leading to the D.D.S. degree; to interview and accept students for admission to the first-year class; and to provide adequate facilities for the teaching of pre-clinical course work in the first two years of operation. Two World War II Quonset huts were procured and one of these was redesigned to allow for the teaching of the preclinical technic courses. The second Quonset hut was modified to permit conduct of laboratory procedures and instruction in human anatomy.

During the first year of that four year period of time, the Dental Foundation of North Carolina was established. Initial funds of $100,000 were raised, literally in a few days, from the dentists of the North Carolina Dental Society and friends.

1952 saw the completion of the first School of Dentistry building. In 1953 and 1954 graduate programs in oral surgery, orthodontics and pedodontics were initiated; in 1953 Continuing education courses were offered in Endodontics, Pedodontics and Periodontics; the first class of Dental Hygienists enrolled in 1953 and graduated in 1955; one textbook had been published, another one was in the process, and yet another one was on the drawing board; a correspondence course for dental assistants was being offered and claimed more student participation than any of the correspondence courses offered by the University at that time; and, a new concept in dental education was created in the Intramural (private practice) program for faculty participation.

Closed circuit television was installed in 1956 by funds from the Dental Foundation of North Carolina. This system pioneered audiovisual services in dental education and was one of the first installed and utilized in a dental school in the United States. At the same time a research laboratory in the school was equipped, and air conditioned, by the Dental Foundation of North Carolina.

A program for dental assistant education was offered in 1957 funded by the Public Health Service as one of five in the United States.

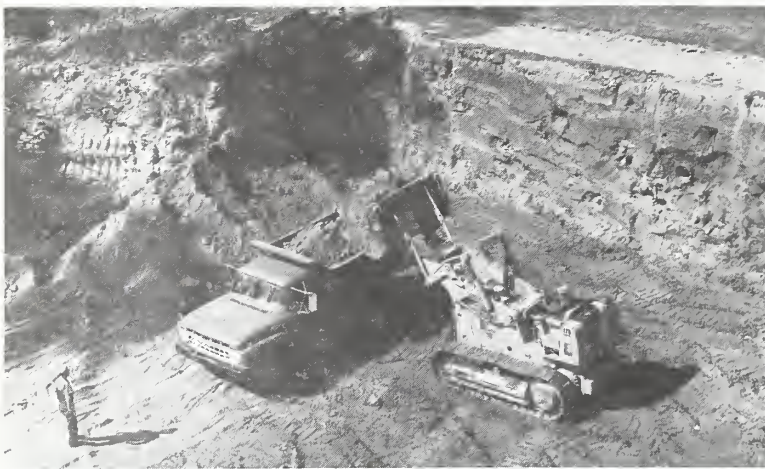

The original School of Dentistry building was air conditioned in 1964.

Construction was begun for the Dental Research Center in 1965. This 45,000 square foot facility was made possible through initial, substantial funds contributed by dentists in North Carolina.

The school's first dean, Dr. John C. Brauer, resigned in 1966 and Dr. James W. Bawden assumed the leadership of the school. Within a short period of time the Dental Research Building was completed and dedicated. Within weeks ground was broken for a new dental school addition of over 100,000 square feet. During the late planning of this new facility, construction money became a problem. The dentists of North Carolina quickly came to the rescue and pledged $35,000 to insure the architects fees, in the event the state legislature did not approve money for the fourth floor of this facility.

However, the people of North Carolina through the legislature provided the total additional amount for the construction of the fourth floor of the new School of Dentistry wing and the pledges were not needed after all. It is meaningful to note the intended support by the dentists of North Carolina during this financial crisis.

Prior to the construction of the Dental Research Center, the original building was bursting at the seams and research space was borrowed wherever possible on campus for temporary use. The new Dental Research Center was soon filled to capacity and became one of five regional dental research centers in the United States.

After the new School of Dentistry wing was dedicated and occupied in 1967, space was absorbed quickly and within a year walls were being built to utilize the spacious waiting room areas for faculty and student needs. In 1969, a new undergraduate curriculum was introduced which differed greatly from the traditional curriculum, followed previously by this school and most schools. Modification and evaluation continues, all of which is an effort to improve instruction and educational opportunity.

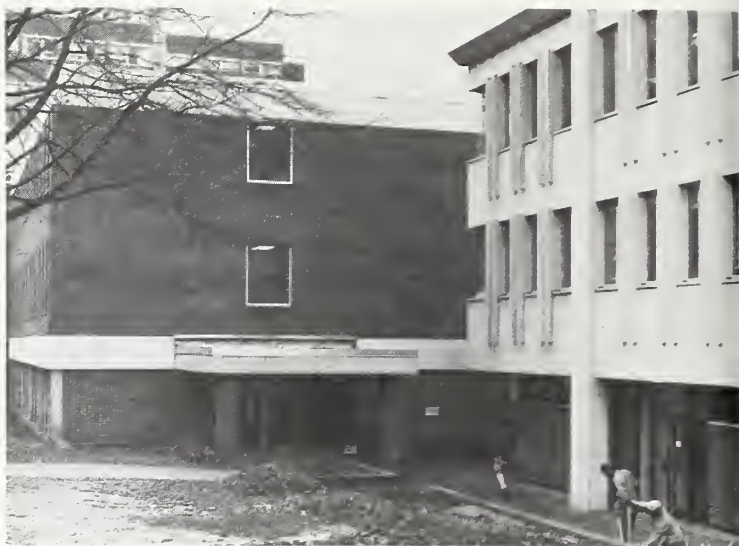

The old dental clinic was completely modernized in 1972 through gifts from private donors and the old pedodontic-periodontic wing has been redesigned as a modern 19 chair endodontic clinic, the most complete endodontic clinical facility known anywhere.

The dental hygiene clinic in the early 70's.

The fourth building has now been completed in the quadrangle between the old dental building and the Dental Research Center. This additional facility provides faculty offices, student lounges, student locker rooms and space for badly needed seminar rooms. Since it has been completed and occupied, the first floor of the old building may be renovated for oral diagnosis and oral surgery. The third floor of the old building has been completely redesigned for a student clinical laboratory, faculty offices for the Department of Endodontics, expansion and modernization of the Orthodontic Department, and lecture hall expansion.

In recent years, through the work of Dean Raymond P. White and the present Dean Ben D. Barker, the school has continued to grow and to change along with the field of Dentistry. Following the Fall 1982 dedication of the top two floors of the new wing, the school has begun quite a facelift with new dental operatories in DAU clinic, the Removable Prosthodontic clinic, and the Periodontics Clinic.

In addition there are new units in the Pedodontics clinic and major renovations in the "Jr.-Sr." laboratory, of Lecture Hall B, the Main Clinic reception area, the Institutional and Professional Relations Offices, the LRC Laboratory, the Administrative offices and seminar rooms and, most recently, renovation in the Removable Prosthodontics/ Pedodontics reception area, the women's staff locker room and the screening clinic. A renovation of the main clinic equipment is in the works for the summer of 1984.

Prior to the publication of this yearbook in 1984, the only student publication in the school of Dentistry was the "Bits and Burs" newspaper.

The School of Dentistry, voted number one in the nation for two consecutive years in the early 70's, has achieved international acclaim and probably possesses more diversified programs for undergraduate, graduate, dental hygiene, dental auxiliary teacher education, dental assistant education, dental research, and extramural programs than any other school of dentistry in the world.

May Your Tomorrow Be The Best

We've done our homework for tomorrow.

Times change. Needs change. That's why your gas company is constantly studying new and better ways to serve its present and future customers. Gas has been proven to be the most efficient, most economical energy there is. More than half of all the country's residences and commercial businesses now use gas. American industry and agriculture also depend heavily on gas. And abundant supplies of gas are available to give us the efficient energy needed for today and tomorrow.

EDITOR'S NOTE

This is of course the first yearbook ever for the UNC School of Dentistry. I hope you enjoy it. The staff has done its best to cover the activities of the past year in the school and to photograph everyone who works, educates, is educated or lives in the school (or all of the above). I will, however, apologize in advance to the scattering of people who blinked, balked, frowned, oversmiled or perhaps were overlooked by the camera for whatever reason. I hope there will be a lens prowling after you next year.

I wish to thank a number of people for its success:

Prissy Allen for resources and ideas,
Joel Sheer for direction,
Dr. Dan Shugars for motivation,
LRC for film developing,
Alisa for your encouragement, ideas and patience ("I'll be home real soon"),
the Len Jewson family for motivation, a place to work, meet and eat,
Doug "Flashdance" Sturdivant for staff support
Dr. Ken May for faculty support,
Rouse and David for endless darkroom hours ("how many more rolls????")

Bob and Barbara for layout after layout,
Mark for photos, photos everywhere,
Chaz for fun and flair,
Scott and Kenny for taking care of business,
Ken and Kent and Spurgeon Dental Society for financial support,
Dental Alumni Association for supplies and financial support,
Dr. Mike Peele and Jeff Kennedy for cartoons,
James LeMay of Moo U, for cover graphics and many hours of work.

Thanks to the many, MANY others who have given of themselves in the past year and indeed to the hundreds of you who have given us the encouragement and faith to see this project through.

NOTES FROM THE BUNCH

We realize that this Yearbook will be improved for years to come but that there always must be a first. We hope that financial growth and your support will bring a colorful, hardback Annual in future years. Our final suggestion is that "Impressions" be the annual project of the Junior D.D.S. class with strong aid from all areas of the school. It's been real.

IMPRESSED?

Thanks to Beth Flocco, D.H. I, for suggesting the name "Impressions" for the Yearbook, to Wallace Ambrose, D.R.C., and TimGrinder, D.D.S. class of 1987 who gave us the same suggestion after we had received Beth's. Thanks also to the other entrants and the Dental Alumni Association for giving us prizes for our "Name the Yearbook" contest. Thanks also to Scott Francis, Ken May, Doug Jewson, Donna Warren and Ken Auman for helping select the name.
